

BostInno's In The Know

Openings and Closings: Fans of spots like the Warren Tavern, Barlow's, and Devlin's will be pleased to hear the long-simmering Brighton newcomer to that family, Brighton Bodega (going in the old Mandy and Joe's space in Brighton), is in hiring mode. Which means an opening soon to follow. Oh, NOCA Provisions and all its fun cafe-ness (kombucha on draft, a la carte proteins and grains, shakshuka eggs) is now open in North Cambridge. Get there. Speaking of Cambridge, Harvard Square is down one mediterranean-inspired restaurant with En Boca shuttering after opening in October of 2016.

Stream King: It's been a couple decades since a major television production was based in the Bay State, but now that Hulu's forthcoming production "Castle Rock" will be based in Mass (Devens and Orange), the inevitable resurrection of Hollywood East conversations are sure to follow with the show inspired by a series of Stephen King stories.

More news:

1. Arlington looking to pilot Bus Rapid Transit on Mass Ave
2. 12 special cocktails at local spots to check out during Negroni Week
3. Provincetown summer tourism video criticized for lack of LGBT representation
4. The 10 new Boston venues for summer parties and events
5. Work begins on Seaport park named after Martin Richard opening 2018
6. DOT Ave "retro" taco joint coming together for HGTV star in Lower Mills